Claims 1-4: Cancelled

5. (Original) A method for recording a voice message and transmitting the voice message to an email address of a recipient, the method comprising the steps of: providing a combination cellular telephone, sound storage device and email communication device, the combination comprising:
- a controller operably connected to a power source, a microphone, a speaker, and a transmitter/receiver for enabling cellular telephone communications;
 - an email address memory operably connected to the controller;
 - a voicemail greeting memory operably connected to the controller; and
 - a voice recorder memory operably connected to the controller;
- storing an email address in the email address memory;
- recording a voicemail greeting on the voicemail greeting memory;
- receiving a call on the combination and automatically answering the call and playing the voicemail greeting;
- recording a voice message onto the voice recorder memory through the transmitter/receiver upon completion of playing the voicemail greeting; and
- transmitting the voice message and the email address through the transmitter/receiver, the email address being associated with the voice message such that the voice message can be delivered as directed by the email address.

6. (Original) The method of claim 5 further comprising the steps of:
receiving the voice message and the email address at a message center;
converting the voice message into a text message;
composing an email including the text message and addressed to the email address;
and transmitting the email such that the text message is delivered to the email address.
